

Preface

Türkiye adopted the Presidential System of Government following the Presidential and Parliamentary General Elections on June 24, 2018. In order to ensure the timely and efficient functioning of the new system, some revisions and adjustments were made to the organization, working procedures and principles of our country's public institutions and agencies, as well as the establishment of new entities required by the system.

This transition prompted the updating of the titles of all public institutions and agencies, as well as their affiliated and related sub-units, in other languages in order to develop a unified public discourse and build a common language.

In line with this purpose, the Public Institutions Dictionary, which was published in Turkish and English in 2021 by the Translation Department of the Directorate of Communications, was made available for publication in nine languages in 2022, with the addition of German, Arabic, Persian, French, Spanish, Italian, Kurdish, and Russian translations. This publication offers a complete alphabetical list of public institutions and agencies in Türkiye, updated according to the new system, along with their translations.
